DETAILED ACTION

Specification

The incorporation of essential material in the specification by reference to a foreign application or patent, or to a publication is improper. Applicant is required to amend the disclosure to include the material incorporated by reference. The amendment must be accompanied by an affidavit or declaration executed by the applicant, or a practitioner representing the applicant, stating that the amendatory material consists of the same material incorporated by reference in the referencing application. See In re Hawkins, 486 F.2d 569, 179 USPQ 157 (CCPA 1973); In re Hawkins, 486 F.2d 579, 179 USPQ 163 (CCPA 1973); and In re Hawkins, 486 F.2d 577, 179 USPQ 167 (CCPA 1973).

The attempt to incorporate subject matter into this application by reference to disclose the properties of the gel material including an elongation greater than 1,000 percent, low durometer and high tear strength is improper because such incorporation of "essential information" originates from a publication.

Information Disclosure Statement

The listing of references in the specification is not a proper information disclosure statement. 37 CFR 1.98(b) requires a list of all patents, publications, or other information submitted for consideration by the Office, and MPEP § 609 A(1) states, "the list may not be incorporated into the specification but must be submitted in a separate paper." Therefore, unless the references have been cited by the examiner on form

PTO-892, they have not been considered. The examiner of record respectfully request applicant to submit PCT/US01/29682 for consideration and review.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

The changes made to 35 U.S.C. 102(e) by the American Inventors Protection Act of 1999 (AIPA) and the Intellectual Property and High Technology Technical Amendments Act of 2002 do not apply when the reference is a U.S. patent resulting directly or indirectly from an international application filed before November 29, 2000. Therefore, the prior art date of the reference is determined under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) prior to the amendment by the AIPA (pre-AIPA 35 U.S.C. 102(e)).

Claims 1 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Yoon, U.S. Patent No. 5,389,080, Yoon, U.S. Patent No. 5,441,486, and Gravener, et al., U.S. Patent No. 5,360,417.

U.S. Patent No. 5,389,080

U.S. Patent No. 5,360,417

U.S. Patent No. 5,441,486

The cited patents disclose a cannula, a housing, a valve, and a gel material inserted in the valve having floating properties. Please note that all cited patents use gel in the embodiments shown above. Accordingly, the cited elements disclosed in claims 1 and 13 are anticipated by the cited patents.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 7-12, 2-6, and 14-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Yoon, U.S. Patent No. 5,389,080, Yoon, U.S. Patent No. 5,441,486, and Gravener, et al., U.S. Patent No. 5,360,417.

This rejection is presented in view of the issues pertaining to the "incorporation by reference" discussed above concerning the properties of the gel material including an elongation greater than 1,000 percent, low durometer and high tear strength. Until the issues of incorporation by reference are resolved, the examiner will consider these limitations to be inherent qualities of gel. Consequentially, limitations disclosing qualities of the gel such as an elongation greater than 1,000 percent, low durometer and high tear strength would not provide any patentable weight to the claims in question.

In relation to all dependent claims cited above, their subject matter is conventional in the art as demonstrated by the teachings of the cited patents.

Accordingly, for a person of ordinary skill in the art, the disclosed enhancements and modification would have been considered obvious design choices.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
